SCANLON, THE HERMIT

Peculiar Looking Old Man Wiro Resides at Providence.

APPEARANCE PECULIAR

A Blood-Red Breach-Cloth an Inseparable Part of His Attire-His Hair is Long and Falls in Wild Confusion Over His Shoulders-Unrequited Love the Cause of Scanlon's Withdrawal From Society.

Providence has a hermit; not one of the red-covered novel sort, but a real live recluse who has forsaken the ways John Weibel gave a dans of the world. Peter Scanlon, as a hermit, is unique, in that he is a modern hermit; his name testifies to that. He neither lives on goat's milk and "yarbs" as other hermits do, nor does he attire Red Men's session in Bethlehem, is himself in the skins of foxes and dogs. yet his personality and mode of living are wierd and strange.

Peter lives in the little house at Bloom avenue and Oak street, Providence, the storm-beaten sides of which are almost hidden by a dense tangle of untrained woodbine and ivy. In sum-mer time the yard is fragrant with the odor of fruit blessoms and fringed with a mass of old-time posies, hollyhocks and honeysuckle, just like Peter's heary face is fringed with a mass of unrestrained beard and hair.

DOGS FOR COMPANIONS,

The interior arrangements of the wee house are nuknown, and many persons have ventured to gain a peep at the spectacle within, but have been deterred by the ferocious growls of two hounds. The dogs are Peter's only associates and have become imbued with their master's resignation to solitude, and their demeanor bespeaks woe to any who dere venture upon their emi-

Peter's mental machinery is peculiar as is evident from his attire and regal waving back of any who presume to question him during periodical excursions to Providence for supplies. When he is espied swinging down the hill the der! Fantastic is a mild word to describe his dress. Imagine a man of the Mineteenth century wearing breechcloth! Yet the Providence hermit wears one of blood-red color. His reason for so doing cannot be explained, for his other garments, though tattered and yellow from age, are of more modern fashion.

The crowning glory, however, of Peter's outfit is a staff about ten feet long, to the top of which is attached a crosspiece. The whole is shaped to resembled a scythe, and when Peter strides along with the odd thing dangling over his shoulder, he resembles Father Time, the obsolete old fellow, whose caricature flaxen-haired and dark-haired children love to ponder over as it appears in "ye olden alms-

VENERATES HIS STAFF.

The scythe stuff is Pater's fetich and is the only subject of his communications with man. He regards it with tender care and when asked its pur-pose says it is a boon to longevity and keeps away the bewitching glances of

This last sentiment attaches itself to rad the true reason for the hermit's seclusion and oddity of character. Years from her late illness. ago, when Peter was endowed with It will be profitable for those who more of the graces of handsome man- are building to see Wardell, plumber he vied with several other men in paying courtship to a young woman. From the fall of Copid's flag, signifying that the race of love had begun, his admiration for his Dulcina was noconcealed, persistent and honest. Peter will t had condiments to back his suit in the ment. way of stocks and government bonds. but they did not win.

This love disappointment was the last bitter dreg of the odd fellow's onp of sorrow, and, swearing eternal sepsration from the world generally and young women particularly, he resigned himself to everlasting solititude.

He still has his stocks and government bonds but witholds the surplus of his income with miserly affection. He has aged rapidly these last few years and neither his stride nor the trot of the hounds is as springy as of yore. However, the power of his arm is just as espable of waving aloft the scythe-feticn as it ever was and he shows nowadays a greater disposition to shade his eyes when in reach of the glances of fickle women.

MENTAL CONDITION EXAMINED.

About a year ago some medical men examined him with a view of placing him in an insane institution. They de-cided he was harmless and inoffensive and refused to take his liberty from him. His hair has not been out for years and hangs in wild profusion about his shoulders.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Stocks and Bonds

New York, May 21.—Speculation at the Stock Exchange was active today, and both the buils and bears had their innings. At the start the influence of heavy London buying gave advantage to these operations for higher prices. Sugar broke from 165% to 161%, the lowest figure for along time. When the demand from the foreigners abated a leading bear made a demonstration against the stocks of bankstration against the stocks of bank-rupt roads and new records were made for these issues. Northern Pacific preferred dropped 4 to 12%; Reading, 1% to 14%; Union Pacific, 1% to 15%; New England, 36 to 38%; Atchison, %. The sud-denness of the decline led the foreigners to part with some the stocks they had bought early in the day and this started a downward movement in railroads. In the last hour Sugar and Chicago Gas developed selling up to 196% and 67% re-ly. This checked the declining spectively. This checked the desilining tendency in the general list. A general raily ensued and the market left off firmer. Total sales, 306,317 shares.
